Electoral College Facts . . .

- The Electoral College is a process, not a place, used to select our President
- Initially created to protect the interests of less populous states, v. larger states, like FL or CA
- A Presidential Candidate must win 270, of the total 538, Nationwide Electoral Votes
- States need to complete counting ballots and recounts by December 14th

* Each state has a select number of votes, called Electors, that equals their number of Senators and Representatives. Connecticut has a total of seven.
