Designing School Accountability to Drive Equity
July 30th, 2020 at 3:30 pm EDT

Now more than ever, educators seek to recognize and identify root causes of inequities in their school communities. Uncovering these gaps is the first step in addressing them. By creating a system for identifying and acting on structures and systems that foster inequitable environments, educators are able to enact sustainable change at the district, site, and classroom level. Join educators David C. Banks and Courtney Winkfield as they explore how to move forward using systems-level accountability and professional development to drive equal education opportunities.
