

THE CENTURY 16 THEATER SHOOTING: EXPERIENCES FROM AURORA, COLORADO

On July 12, 2012, an active shooter event took place in Theater 9 of the Century 16 Theater in Aurora Colorado. Within less than five minutes, a single assailant shot or otherwise wounded 70 innocent people, 12 of them fatally. Aurora Police Commander Jad Lanigan, the APD Incident Commander, and Commander Mike Dailey (Ret), one of the first ranking APD officers to arrive, will discuss the entire timeline of this event: From the preparations taken by the shooter, radio transmissions, the public safety response to multiple scenes, the ongoing impact of the incident, and the heroism of everyday people just out to enjoy a movie.

This free presentation is an invaluable opportunity for all branches of public safety and public health to learn from this seminal event through the eyes of those who experienced it and who made critical life-and-death decisions for patients and responders.
