Mission

To ensure citizen access to the records and meetings of all public agencies in Connecticut in support of the public's right to know.

Statutory Responsibility

To ensure that all public agencies comply with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA).

Public Service

The Commission holds hearings and renders decisions on citizen complaints alleging denial of access under the FOIA. It also conducts educational programs and prepares literature for public officials and the general public.

Improvements/Achievements 2015-2016

The Commission continued its efforts to efficiently tackle its heavy volume of contested cases, placing emphasis on its ombudsman program as it had done the previous year. In 2015, staff resolved 644, or more than 71%, of the 899 cases, without a hearing. The remaining 255, or 28%, either went to a hearing, are scheduled for a hearing or may be resolved short of a hearing.

Nonetheless, the continuing heavy proliferation of formal complaints makes accomplishing such efficiencies a formidable task. In 2015, the Commission received 899 formal complaints, only 42 fewer than the all-time record of the 941 formal complaints received in 2014. As of August 31, 2016, the Commission was on pace for more than 900 complaints for the calendar year. Prior to 2006, the highest number of complaints ever received by the Commission was 676 in 2000. The Commission now averages more than 800 formal complaints a year, with 807 in calendar year 2008, 792 in 2009, 806 in 2010, 719 in 2011, 730 in 2012, 810 in 2013, 941 in 2014 and 899 in 2015.

In other matters of interest:

- The Commission's most critical accomplishment may well have been its ability to stay afloat. As it was for many agencies, budget adjustments caused by the ongoing state fiscal crisis made day-to-day operations particularly difficult. The budget passed by the General Assembly reduced the Commission's budget from $1,735,450 to $1,481,416 and forced staff layoffs, this in spite of increased complaint volume. The Commission was (and remains) extremely concerned that the nearly 15 percent reduction in its budget will have a detrimental impact on the Commission's ability to carry out its core services and responsibilities, and that it will curtail the right of the citizens of Connecticut to open and accountable government.
- The Commission has continued to receive a growing number of requests for speakers and workshops as part of its educational programs. The annual FOI Conference drew 167 attendees in April. The Commission has provided an average of 95 speakers a year at a variety of venues over the past five years. This represents an increase of 35-40 speaking engagements a year over the past 10 years. A total of 109 speaking programs were offered in 2015. Between 115 and 120 are anticipated for 2016.
- The Commission continued to expand its community outreach program aimed at the state's minority communities. Several presentations were made targeting Spanish-speaking citizens at various festivals and events. The program features Spanish-language videos and literature and is being distributed statewide.
- The Commission expanded the use of the educational video "The Government Belongs to the People" in 2016. The video offers insight into the rich history of Freedom of Information in Connecticut as well as examples of the need for open and accessible government. The video, completed in 2012, is now being shared with citizens and public officials throughout the state.
- The Commission remains in constant dialogue with the Legislature about all proposed legislation that could impact the people's right to know. During the regular legislative session, the Commission monitored 115 bills. A total of 111 received public hearings and FOI Commission staff prepared statements for and/or testified on 15 of those bills. As of June 14, 2016, 35 bills became public acts.

Reducing Waste

The Commission is committed to regular reviews of its current operating procedures aimed at reducing waste and increasing efficiency.
