

It's the time of the year that we remind parents of the dangers of open windows and small children with easy access.

During the COVID 19 pandemic, this risk is elevated as many people are driving-by as a means of social distancing. Further complicating from a child protective service perspective, we may be less likely to make observations of furniture placement in relation to windows inside of homes that we are not going inside of.

PLEASE take to time to remind parents of how quickly these accidents happen and talk through vigilant supervision of young children and potential hazards that may exist in homes.
