Compendium Program: Anger: Creating New Choices

Gender Specific for:BOTH; RT Program Code: NC

Open Close:True, Session Group:False, Session Numbers: 1, Evidence Based:True

Description:

Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CBT), which explains that human behavior and emotions are caused by one's thoughts, is an Evidence Based Practice. Anger: Creating New Choices video series and workbooks take participants through a reflection of their actions and emotions and how those are influenced by their thoughts, utilizing the CBT Evidence Based Practices.

CBT is based on an educational model on the scientifically supported assumption that most emotional and behavioral reactions are learned. Therefore, the goal of CBT is to help students unlearn their unwanted reactions and to learn a new way of reacting.

The educational emphasis of CBT has an additional benefit – it leads to long term results. When people understand how and why they are doing well, they know what to do to continue doing well.

CBT lessons have a specific agenda for each session with specific techniques/ concepts taught during each session. CBT focuses on the student's goals. Instructors are directive in the sense that they show students how to think and behave in ways to obtain what they want. Therefore, CBT techniques do not tell students what to do – rather, they teach students how to do.

Anger: Creating New Choices videos and workbook utilize the Cognitive Behavior Therapy format, making them an effective part of a rehabilitation program (Simpson, 2004).
