Update to the Criminal Justice Policy Advisory Commission

How Much Do We Do?

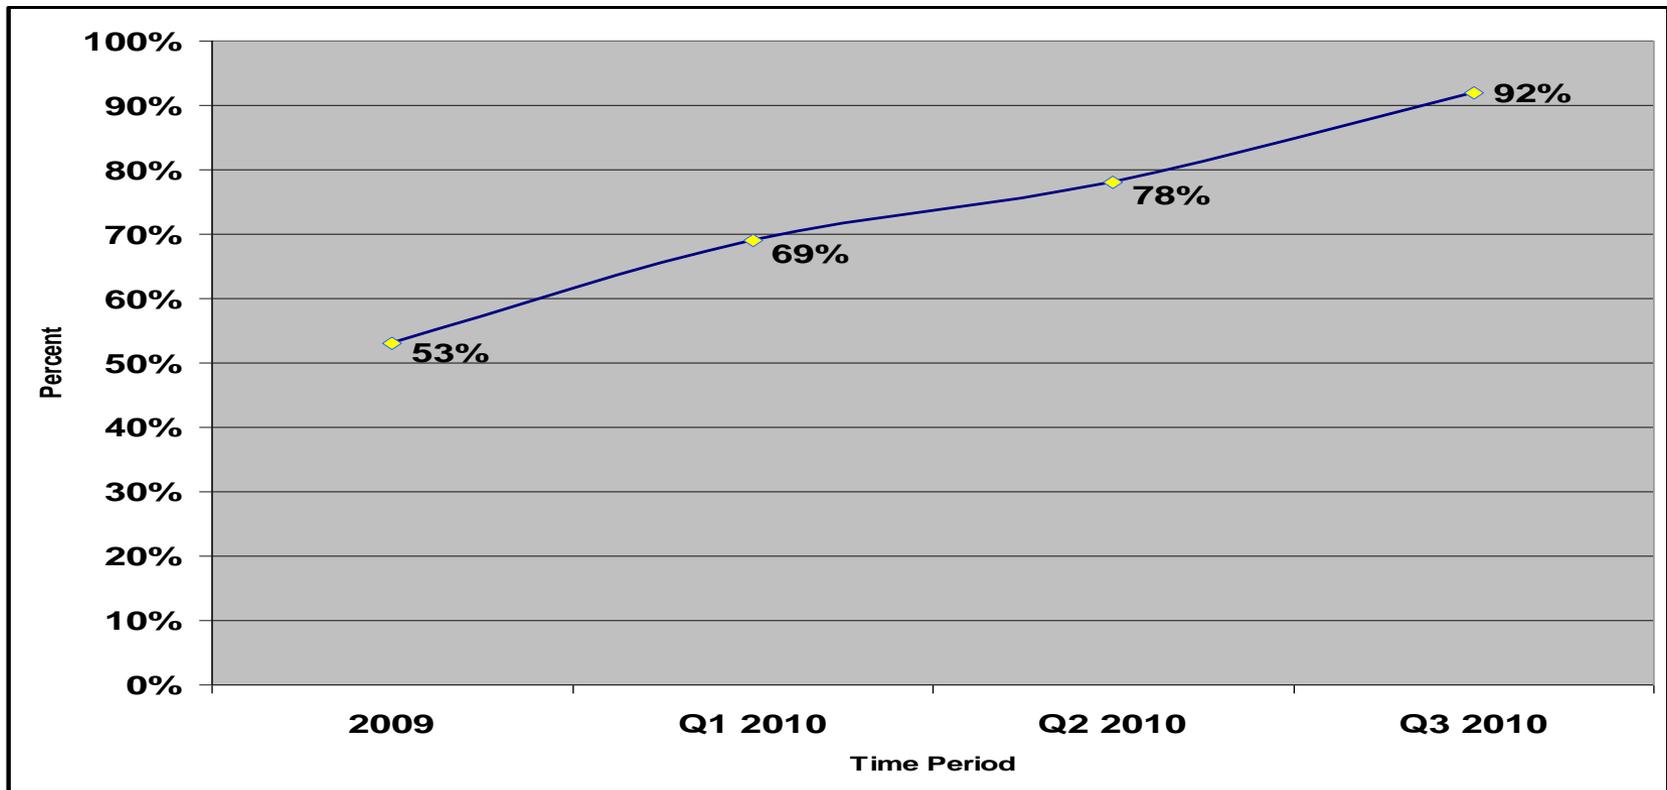

Adult Probation Caseloads 2009-2010

- The number of probationers on active caseloads has decreased by 22 percent since January 2010, while the total supervision caseload has decreased by only six percent
- Total probation intake decreased in FY 2010 by five percent to 26,900 from a five year average of 28,304
- The average caseload of a supervision officer in January 2009 was 91; today the average is 65

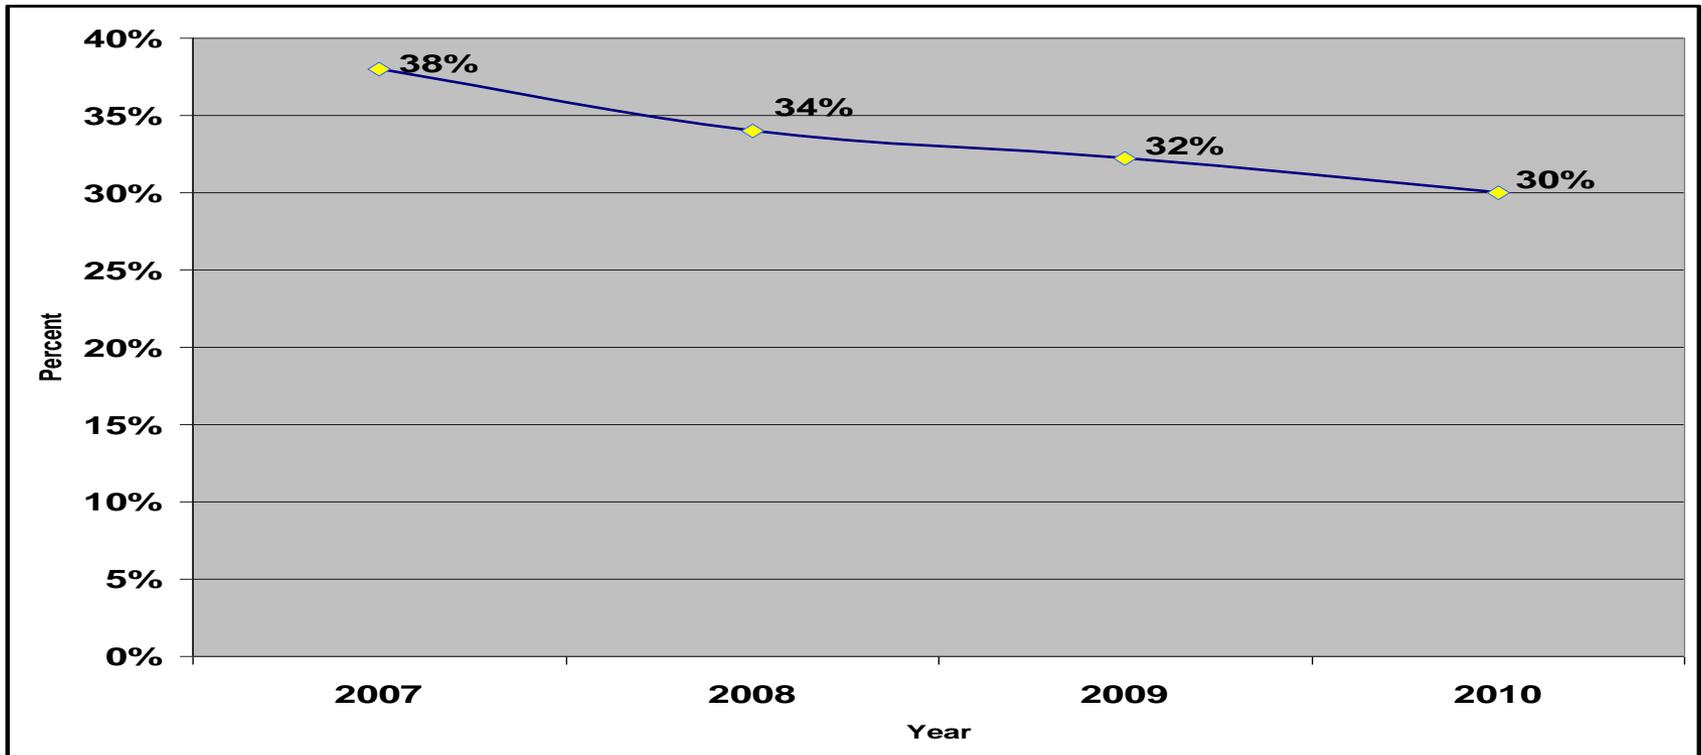

How Well Do We Do It?

Adult Probation Treatment Timeliness 2009-2010

- Probation Officers are required to make timely referrals that result in probationers starting treatment within 30 days following the completion of a case plan
- The performance in this metric has increased by 39 percentage points over the 2009 performance

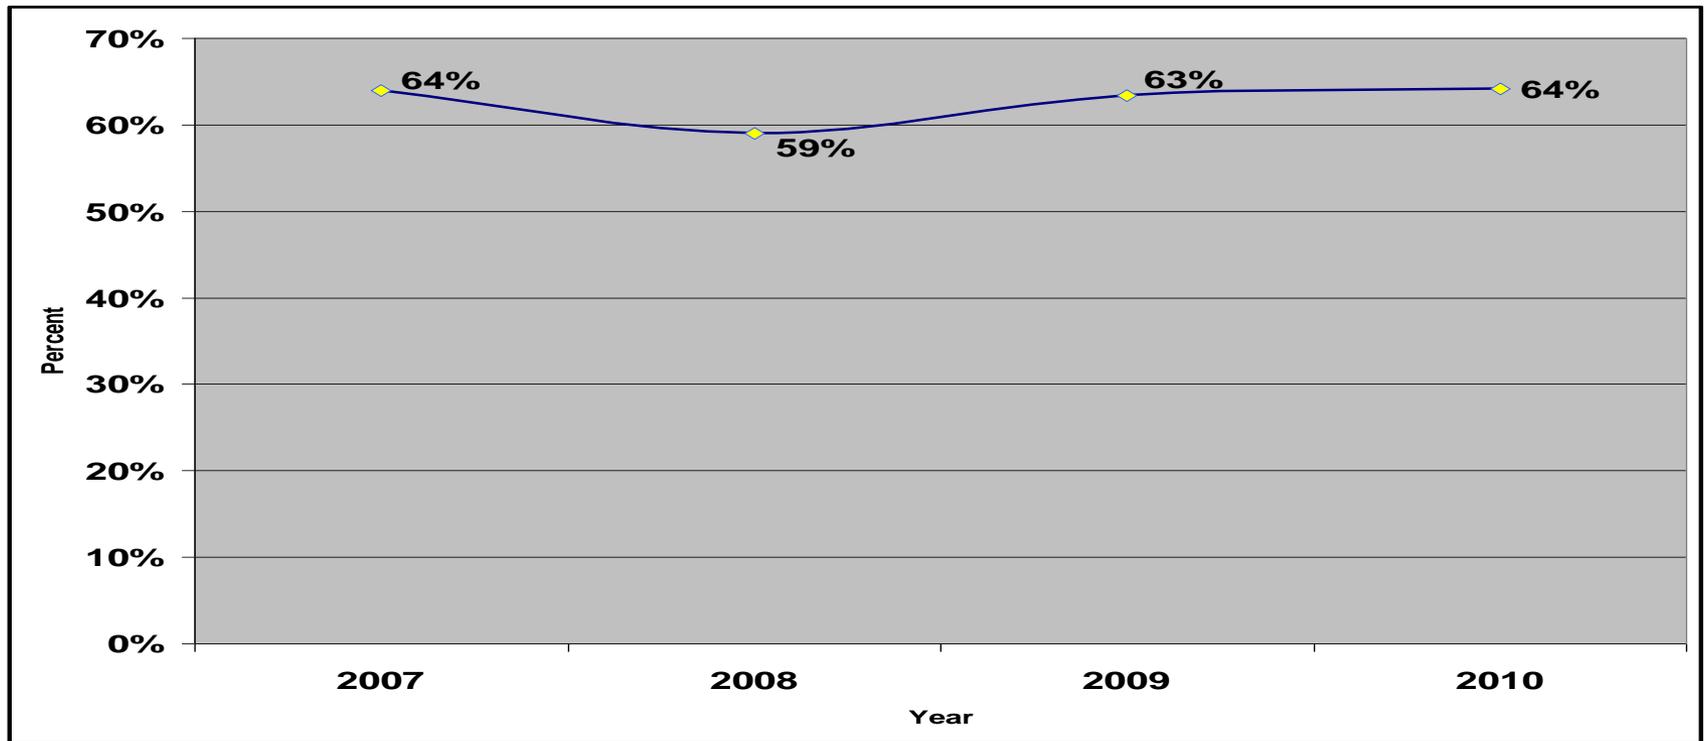

Adult Probation Technical Violation Rate 2007-2010

- Technical violation rates have trended lower compared to previous years, showing a reduction of over 20 percent from 2007-2010
- Programs such as the Technical Violation Units and more consistent application of policy and procedure have contributed to this trend

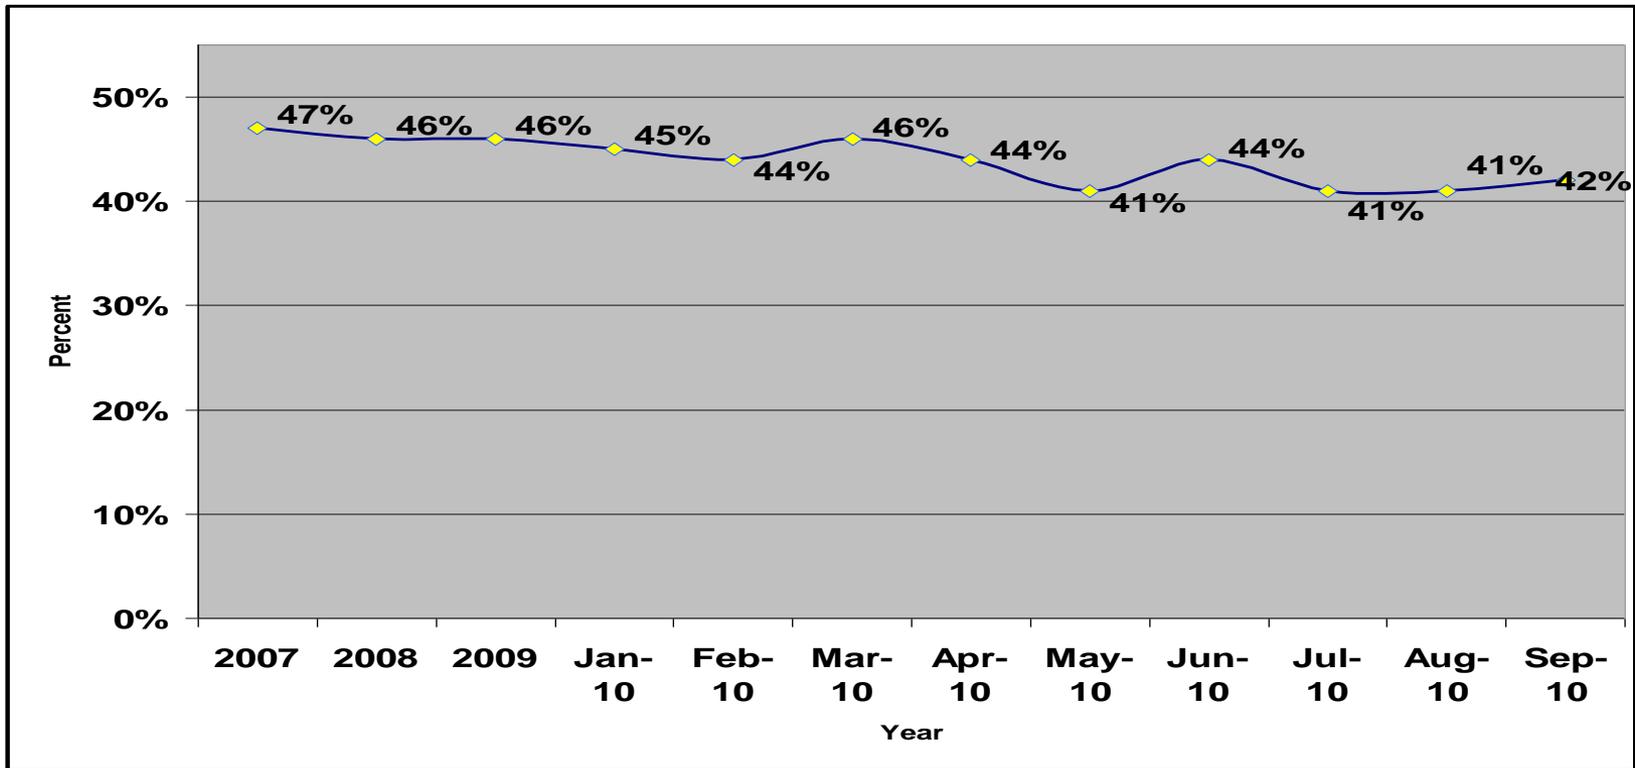

Is Anyone Better Off?

Adult Probation Successful Completion Rate 2007-2010

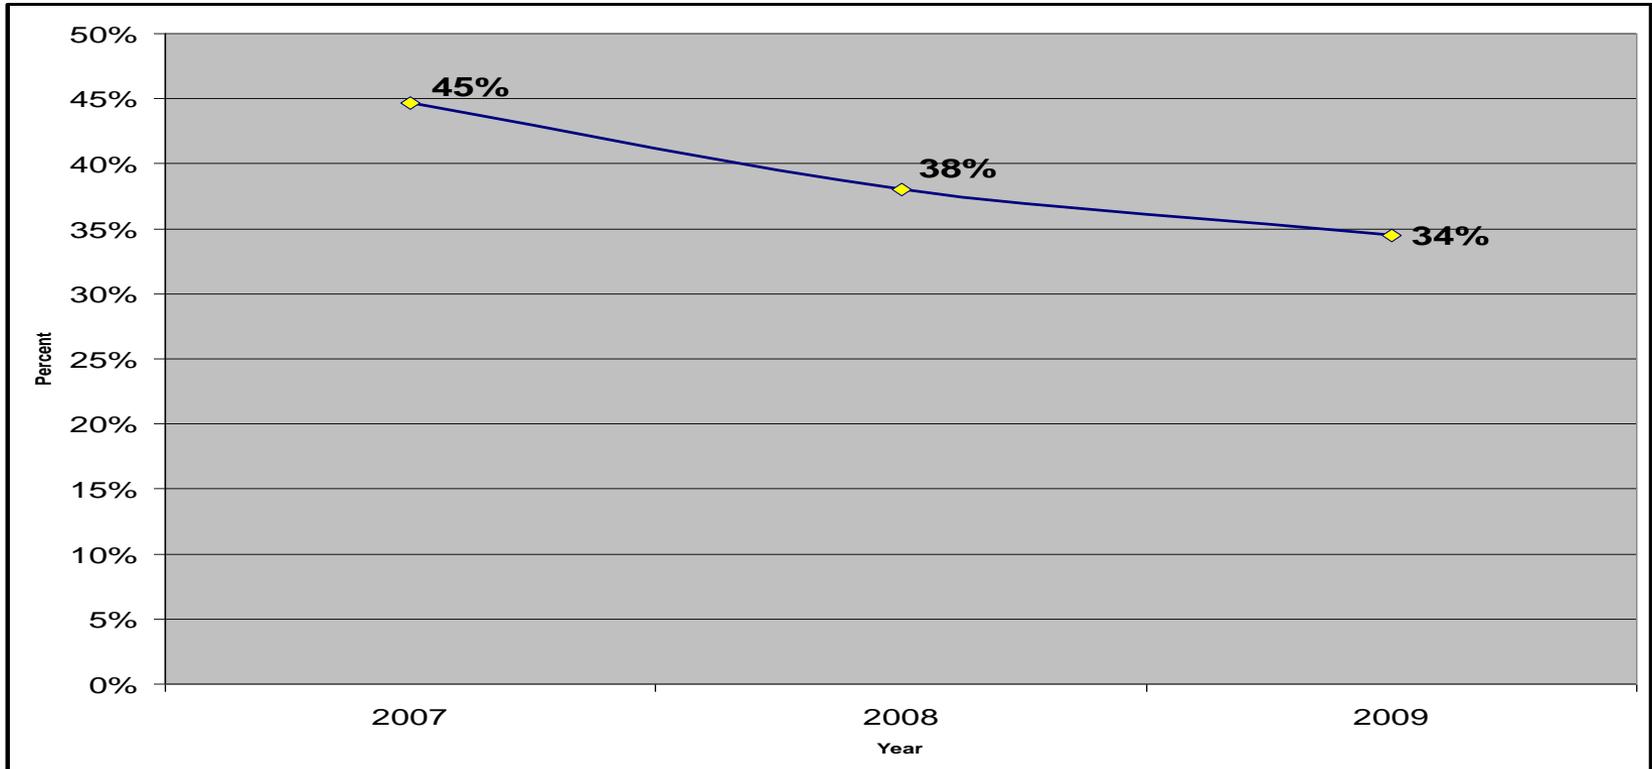

- Completion of probation without warrant activity has consistently been at or above the established goal in 2010
- Nationally, the rate of successful completion of probation is 59-62 percent (Bureau of Justice Statistics)

Adult Probation 24-month Rearrest Rate 2007-2010

- A one percentage point drop in the re-arrest rate, sustained over a full year, results in approximately 280 fewer persons recidivating annually. A five percentage point drop results in 1,400 fewer recidivists (based on ~28,000 new probationers annually)

AIC Completer 12-month Rearrest Rate 2007-2009

- 12-month re-arrest rates for clients who complete AIC services is generally declining
- A Legislative Program Review and Investigations Committee study in 2004 found that 44 percent of AIC participants were re-arrested within 12 months
