BURGLARY STATISTICS

By: Christopher Reinhart, Senior Attorney

You asked for statistics related to burglary crimes, including the number of people in prison for burglary.

SUMMARY

Using information from databases maintained by the Office of Fiscal Analysis, we obtained statistics related to burglary crimes.

On August 1, 2007, there were 903 people in prison with burglary as their most serious offense. This includes those incarcerated while awaiting trial as well as those convicted and sentenced.

On June 1, 2007, there were 3,168 probation cases with burglary as the primary charge. It is not clear how many people are on probation for burglary because it is possible for a person to have more than one probation case.

Judicial case data shows that the courts handled 4,005 burglary offenses in FY 07. From FY 02 to FY 07, this was the lowest number. The highest occurred in FY 03 with 5,686 offenses.

PRISON POPULATION

Table 1 below displays the incarcerated population under each of the burglary statutes on August 1, 2007.

Table 1: Incarcerated Population, Burglary as Most Serious Offense, August 1, 2007

Statute	Title	Number
53a-101	Burglary, 1st degree	135
53a-102	Burglary, 2nd degree	197
53a-102a	Burglary, 2nd with a firearm	2
53a-103	Burglary, 3rd degree	568
53a-103a	Burglary, 3rd degree with a firearm	1
Total		903

PROBATION CASES

On June 1, 2007, there were 55,804 probationers with open cases under supervision. There were 71,145 open cases associated with these clients. Each case has a primary charge. Thus, some probationers have more than one open case

Table 2 below displays the probation cases under each of the burglary statutes on June 1, 2007.
