

Yield Study Data Form for Child Nutrition Programs

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food Buying Guide for Child Nutrition Programs (FBG) provides yield information for common types and customary sizes of meat/meat alternates, vegetables, fruits, and grains, including commercially available foods and USDA Foods. Sponsors of Child Nutrition Programs should use the FBG to determine how much food to purchase to meet the minimum portion sizes in the USDA's meal patterns, and to calculate how recipes contribute to the meal patterns.

If a food service operation consistently obtains a higher or lower yield for a product than the yield specified by the FBG, the sponsor should conduct an in-house yield study to determine the actual number of portions of a specified size that the product provides. Sponsors must follow specific and verifiable procedures to document product yields. This document summarizes the Connecticut State Department of Education's (CSDE) procedures for conducting product yield studies for Child Nutrition Programs. The CSDE's Yield Study Form for Child Nutrition Programs is available at the end of this document.

Yield Study Procedures

1. Select a day when the product is served on the menu. Use at least four separate samples of the product to determine yields. A "sample" is the product pack unit, such as number 10 cans or 5-pound bags. If the food service operation uses more samples, the yield data will be more accurate.
2. For the best yield estimate, at least two people should independently portion and count the samples. Each person completes half of the samples. For example, with a sample of four cans, each person works alone to measure and count the servings from two cans.
3. Select the appropriate measuring utensil for the portion size being served, such as a number 16 scoop/disher or 1/2-cup measuring spoon. For information on measuring utensils, refer to the Institute of Child Nutrition's (ICN) Basics at a Glance Portion Control Poster and visit the "Weights and Measures" section of the CSDE's Crediting Foods in School Nutrition Programs webpage.
4. Fill the measuring utensil level to the top of the measure.
5. Carefully count and document the number of portions in each sample.
6. Add the total number of servings from each of the samples.
7. Divide the total number of servings by the number of samples to get the average number of servings per sample.
8. Complete the CSDE's Yield Study Form for Child Nutrition Programs and maintain on file for review by CSDE staff during the Administrative Review of the sponsor's Child Nutrition Programs.

Sample Completed Yield Study Form

Instructions: Complete this form to document yields for products that provide a higher or lower yield than the yield specified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food Buying Guide for Child Nutrition Programs (FBG), and for products that are not included in the FBG. For assistance, refer to the attached "Information and Instructions" and completed sample Yield Study Data Form. The sponsor must maintain this form on file. The Connecticut State Department of Education (CSDE) will review this information during the Administrative Review of the sponsor's Child Nutrition Programs.
