The CHRO Business Training Institute

Connecticut law prohibits discrimination in employment, housing, public accommodations, and credit transactions. The most effective way to eliminate discrimination is to ensure it does not happen in the first place. To that end, the CHRO is dedicated to helping businesses comply with the law by providing free trainings for employers and housing providers as resources permit. By learning what the law entails and the best practices to ensure an equal, fair, and inclusive environment, businesses can become more inclusive and rid society of discrimination.

Experience that Matters

The Business Training Institute grants employers and housing providers access to experienced CHRO attorneys who can provide training on a wide range of topics related to antidiscrimination law. As Connecticut's antidiscrimination enforcement agency, our attorneys are experts on what the law entails, how it applies to businesses, and how employers and housing providers can ensure they comply with the law.

Training that Counts

Connecticut anti-discrimination law aims at establishing equal opportunity and justice for all persons within the state. Ensuring compliance with that law requires an understanding of what the law covers, doesn't cover, and how to set up a workplace that meets all legal obligations. The attorneys of the CHRO can provide trainings to ensure that you get the information you need to provide equal opportunity for your employees and clients.

Services Free of Charge

There is no fee for this service. Donations are, however, welcome. Any donations received go towards funding our youth outreach and student internship programs. Requests for speaking engagements will be accommodated as resources are available.
