

DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

December 22, 2023

Dear Senator Kushner, Representative Sanchez, Senator Sampson, Representative Ackert, and the Members of the Labor and Public Employees Committee,

This report is submitted in response to Special Act 23-19, An Act Concerning a Study of Pathways to State Employment. DAS studied the hiring practices of state agencies for positions in state service, and the following are our responses regarding the two required subjects of Special Act 23-19:

1. The feasibility of eliminating requirements for college degrees for certain appointments to state classified service.

Eliminating requirements for college degrees is feasible because it has been done at the State of Connecticut Executive Branch ("the State") on a large scale for years. The State has been progressive in removing degree requirements from job classes since the early 1980s. Currently, most of the State's job classes do not require a degree, but rather require some level of experience (with a degree being a permissible substitution for that experience).

Attached is information regarding requirements for current job classes, including the final requirements for all active job classes. Currently, 157 out of 1,885 (or approximately 8%) of job classes have a degree requirement. Of those 157 job classes that have a degree requirement, this report shows that 88 of these classes (56%) that have a degree requirement also require a license or certification to meet the requirements of the position. Our areas of greatest need, including licensed healthcare and engineering, are often areas where our job classes require degrees as degrees are a requirement of the relevant occupational license.

2. The feasibility of establishing a program to provide applicants with pathways for alternative routes to appointment to state classified service.

Alternative routes to appointment to classified service already exist, and an additional program is not necessary. Pathways into classified service are governed by the 'State Personnel Act,' Chapter 67 of the Connecticut General Statutes and the following are key sections.

Section 5-194 provides that Chapter 67 "shall be so construed and administered as to provide a uniform and equitable system of personnel administration of employees in the state service. Recruitment, selection, appointment, development, promotion, transfer, layoff, classification, compensation, discipline, separation and provision for the welfare of state employees shall be performed in a manner to secure and retain well qualified employees to carry out state programs effectively and efficiently and to provide reasonable stability of employment in the state service."

DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Section 5-195 provides that "The system of personnel administration for employees in the state service shall be based on merit principles." The State's classification system uses several statutory job class designations to uphold merit principles while also providing multiple pathways, including competitive, non-competitive, and non-examined. Below is a description of each designation and the accompanying section within Chapter 67. (Emphasis added)

- Classified/Competitive positions comprise the majority of job classes in state service. Per Sections 5-215a and 5-216 the positions within these job classes require applicants to compete in and pass a formal merit system examination before an appointment to a vacant position can be made. These examinations test a candidate's knowledge, skill, and ability to perform the duties of a specific job.
  - Examples of competitive job classes are Accountant, Social Worker, Administrative Assistant, and Human Resources Specialist.
- Classified/Non-competitive job classes do not require the same level of transparency and formal "competition" as it relates to an examination (per Section 5-233), but many job classes in this designation have collective bargaining agreement requirements that mirror merit principle requirements when filling vacant positions. Non-competitive job classes include trainee level classes, semi-skilled labor, or technical classes.
  - Examples of non-competitive job classes are Maintainer, Clerk, and Connecticut Careers Trainee.
- Classified/Non-Examined classes require a professional license or advanced degree, satisfactory completion of an accreditation, certificate, or licensure program. Per Section 5-227b, if such credentials are a mandatory requirement for employment, they may serve as the sole basis for appointment. Generally, applicants have already taken and passed a state board or licensure examination as part of the credentialing requirements and a subsequent merit system examination is not necessary.
  - Examples of non-examined job classes include Transportation Engineer 1 (Engineering), Staff Physician, and Staff Attorney 1.

At an agency's disposal, there are various levels and types of job classes to select from within the above designations. From the many job classes, state agencies then make specific position management decisions based on their own business and operational considerations. State agencies must request approval from the Office of Policy and Management (OPM) to fill such positions, unless the positions are already automatically approved to fill by policy set by OPM. Once state agencies have approval to fill these positions, as the statutory appointing authorities, they further decide how to recruit to fill those positions once they have determined that there are no candidates with mandatory statutory and/or contractual rights to those positions (e.g., recruit open to the public, within the State, or within the agency).

The following illustrates the various organizational levels of job classes and associated experience and training requirements that the State offers:

- Seasonal/Intern Level: This level requires little to no experience or training that could be expected to provide the required basic knowledge, skills, and abilities of the position. Incumbents receive onthe-job training and exposure to work as a state employee. These jobs are typically unclassified, established for a specific time period, and permanent status cannot ultimately be attained. However, these jobs may lead to other opportunities within the State, including positions in the classified service.
  - Examples of seasonal and intern level positions include State Intern, High School Cooperative Education Intern, Qualified Craft Worker Intern, Agricultural Experiment Station Seasonal Assistant, Environmental Seasonal Resource Assistant (Seasonal Patrol Officer) and Seasonal Worker.
- Trainee/Entry Level: This level requires little to no experience or training in the area related to the position. Incumbents receive intensive training on-the-job over a period of time, up to 3 years pursuant to Section 5-234. In most cases, when incumbents fulfill their professional or preprofessional training program, they are promoted to the applicable organizational level below. Most of these job classes are classified/non-competitive.
  - Examples of trainee/entry level positions include State Trooper Trainee, Protective Services Trainee, Information Technology Technician Trainee, Connecticut Careers Trainee, Social Worker Trainee, and Leadership Associate.
- Basic Working Level: This level has minimal experience and training requirements that could be expected to provide the basic required knowledge, skills, and abilities of the position. These job classes are mainly utilized in a non-professional and paraprofessional series. Generally, incumbents perform routine mental, manual, mechanical or physical work. This level differs from the training level in that incumbents may remain at this level after the completion of their training. Most of these job classes are classified/non-competitive.
  - Examples of basic working level positions include Clerk, General Worker, Social Services Assistant, Buildings and Grounds Patrol Officer, and Maintainer.

- Junior Working Level: This level requires some knowledge and experience in an area related to the position. Academic background may be required if an incumbent has no related experience in order to be considered for one of these level positions. These job classes are mainly utilized in professional series. To move to the full working level, additional experience is required. Incumbents would not move to the full working level unless they had demonstrated the ability to independently perform the full range of duties required at the higher level. It is possible to remain at the junior working level if the organization does not require the range of duties appropriate to the full working level job. Most of these job classes are classified/competitive.
  - Examples of junior working level positions include Environmental Analyst 1, Social Services Program Assistance Technician 1, Information Technology Analyst 1, Secretary 1, Tax and Corrections Examiner 1.
- Working Level: This level requires some knowledge and experience in an area related to the position. Academic background is required if there is no experience requirement to be considered for this position. These job classes perform a full range of paraprofessional and professional duties. Most incumbents in an organization should fall into this level. Incumbents would not move to other levels unless there was a distinct change in duties and an organizational need for the higher-level position. Most of these job classes are either classified/competitive or classified/non-examined designations.
  - Examples of working level positions include Accountant, Social Worker Social and Human Services, Secretary 2, Information Technology Analyst 2, and Tax Corrections Examiner 2.
- Advanced Working Level: This level requires considerable knowledge acquired through related experience and/or formal training in a specific area related to the position. This level is generally reserved for specialists. These job classes perform a full range of tasks with emphasis on the difficult and complex ones. There should generally be fewer incumbents at this level than at the working level. Most of these job classes are either classified/competitive or classified/non-examined designations.
  - Examples of advanced working level positions include Administrative Assistant, Information Technology Analyst 3, Clinical Social Worker Associate, Associate Financial Examiner, and Laboratory Assistant 3.
- Working Lead Level: This level requires considerable knowledge acquired through related experience at the working level in a specific area related to the position. This level is reserved for incumbents who have full-time lead responsibility over employees, while assisting in the performance of work activities. Most of these job classes are either classified/competitive or classified/non-examined designations.

- Examples of working lead level positions include Head Clerk, Social Services Lead Investigator, Eligibility Services Specialist, Head Nurse, and Transportation Planner 2.
- Supervisory Level: This level requires advanced knowledge acquired through related experience at the working level in a specific area related to the position. These job classes are reserved for incumbents who have full-time supervisory responsibility over employees. They may participate in the work but usually only if it is of an occasional or emergency in nature. This level differs from the working lead level in that the tasks are distinct and dissimilar from those being performed by subordinate employees. Most of these job classes are either classified/competitive or classified/nonexamined designations.
  - Examples of supervisory level positions include Supervising Nurse, Social Services Investigations Supervisor, Information Technology Supervisor, Computer Operations Supervisor, Health Services Water Supplies Section Supervisor (Engineering), Transportation Supervising Engineer and Supervising Accountant.
- Manager or Director Level: This level requires advanced knowledge in a specific area and in management systems and techniques acquired through related experience at the supervisory/working lead level in a specific area related to the position. These job classes are reserved for incumbents with full-time managerial responsibilities for a major program. This level will have supervisory responsibilities as outlined in the Supervisory Level, but the emphasis of the position should be on management activities. Most of these job classes are classified/competitive, classified/non-examined, or unclassified.
  - Examples of Manager or Director level positions include State Program Manager, Social Services Director of Quality Assurance, Social Services Program Manager, Information Technology Manager 2, Transportation Planning Director, and Social Services Operational Manager.
- Administrator Level: This level requires advanced knowledge in a specific area and in management systems and techniques acquired through related experience at the supervisory level in a specific area related to the position. This level is similar to the Manager and or Director level in the types of duties; the difference is in the scope and complexity of the programs under the manager's responsibility. Usually, this individual's responsibilities do not directly relate to any of the specific technical activities under their supervision but focus on coordination, planning and management of these various programs. Most of these job classes are classified/competitive, classified/nonexamined, or unclassified.
  - Examples of administrator level positions include Children and Families Administrator, Transportation Engineering Administrator, Information Technology Manager 4, Transportation Construction Administrator, and Health Management Administrator.

Other Considerations.

The process of filling positions involves following a complex combination of statutes, collective bargaining agreements, regulations, and management policy decisions. The above highlights some of the key statutory requirements that guide the process of filling positions (that pathways are a part of). It should be noted that there are also various collective bargaining agreement requirements and affirmative action regulations that also prescribe how state agencies are to fill positions, as applicable.

We thank you for the opportunity to submit our response. If there are any additional questions, we are available to help answer them.

Sincerely,

Nicholas M. Hermes Deputy Commissioner and Chief Human Resources Officer
