(NEW HAVEN, CT) — The Connecticut Department of Correction will host a Reentry Resource Expo on Friday, October 16, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Albertus Magnus College, 700 Prospect Street in New Haven.

Focused on “Resources for Your Next Chapter,” the event will bring together community organizations, service providers and other partners to connect individuals with resources that can support a successful transition back into the community.

Attendees will have the opportunity to:

- Connect with employment and educational opportunities
- Explore housing and support services
- Access health and recovery resources
- Meet directly with community organizations and service providers
- Identify resources that can help support their next steps

“Successful reentry requires more than simply returning to the community. It requires access to meaningful opportunities, resources and support,” said Connecticut Department of Correction Acting Commissioner Sharonda Carlos. “This expo is about bringing those connections together in one place and helping individuals take the next step forward.”

“Reentry is a process, and having the right resources and connections can make a meaningful difference along the way,” said Joe Gallant, Reentry Expo Committee Member. “This expo gives individuals an opportunity to connect directly with organizations that can help with employment, education, housing, health and other important needs as they move forward.
