Achievement First Bridgeport Academy is a rigorous college preparatory public charter school that serves students from the Bridgeport community. The educational program is built upon the culture and academic curriculum developed at Amistad Academy. Achievement First Bridgeport prioritizes both academic and social growth, with a central mission focused on guiding students towards college graduation and/or careers. Achievement First Bridgeport Academy maintains high expectations for student behavior and academic progress, fostering a culture where achievement is not only valued but also considered 'cool.' Within this positive environment, students feel safe, inspiring them to develop greater self-awareness and confidence. To support our students' learning journeys, we offer numerous opportunities, including extended instructional days, small-group learning, after-school tutoring, and a Summer Academy program. Graduates of Achievement First Bridgeport Academy have the opportunity to continue their education at Amistad High School in New Haven through a cooperative agreement between the Achievement First schools.

The mission of the Great Oaks Charter School-Bridgeport (GO-BPT) is to prepare students to succeed in college. The purpose of the school is to give students the knowledge and values required to graduate from a competitive four-year college by delivering individualized instruction, emphasizing character development, and fostering relationships with families. What sets GO-BPT apart is the tutoring model. GO delivers at least two periods of one-on-one or small group tutoring to every student every day through the Great Oaks Tutor Corps.

At GO-BPT, the unrelenting focus on academic achievement with individualized care and support develops students' mindsets, skills, and knowledge to prepare them for high school and college success. We deeply value our scholars and recognize the greatness in every individual. Our team gets to know students extremely well so that they can educate the individual to maximize their potential.

Amistad Academy Elementary opened in New Haven in 2006, as a long-anticipated expansion of the flagship Amistad Academy Middle School. During the inaugural year of the elementary school, a remarkable transformation occurred: at the start, only 4 percent of kindergarten students were reading at or above their grade level, but by the year's end, an impressive 99 percent had achieved this milestone. The key to the remarkable success of Amistad Academy Elementary lies in its foundation of a vibrant school culture characterized by values such as sharing, caring, hard work, reflection, and enjoyment of the learning process. Each morning, the music teacher leads "Morning Motivation" with an engaging chant, asking, "Are you going to have fun today?" Furthermore, a culture of mutual support and growth thrives among the educators, with regular collegial observations and a continuous exchange of best practices.

This renowned school gained significant recognition when it was featured in the PBS documentary titled "Closing the Achievement Gap" in 2004. It also earned the distinction of being named Connecticut's 2006 Title I Distinguished School due to achieving the most substantial performance gains among all middle schools in the state. The school has a strong sense of community, illustrated by its weekly "Morning Circle" gatherings. During these sessions, students receive recognition from both teachers and peers for their academic accomplishments and exemplary character traits. Additionally, "Town Meetings" occur every six weeks, fostering school spirit through music, skits, cheers, and awards. Amistad Academy Middle School also boasts a robust after-school enrichment program known as "Encore!" Achievement First Amistad High School is a college and career preparatory public charter school in New Haven, Connecticut. We provide a life-altering education that prepares students for the opportunities and responsibilities they will face in college and beyond. The school was founded in 2006 based on one innovative premise: close the opportunity gap by providing a prep-school-quality education to urban students. Achievement First Amistad High combines rigorous courses and high expectations with a host of support services more common at affluent and private high schools, including SAT prep, intensive college counseling, tutoring and explicit character education. Achievement First Amistad High is recognized as a national model of education reform, proving what is truly possible when urban students receive a world-class education. In the classrooms at Achievement First Amistad High, all students are prepared to take responsibility for their own learning. As students' progress from grade 9 to 12, instruction shifts from a teacher-directed approach to student-led exchanges of ideas. Outside of class, students grow as athletes, volunteers, leaders and responsible community members through participation in the school's extracurricular, athletic and arts programs.

Elm City College Preparatory Elementary which opened its doors in New Haven in 2004, marked a significant milestone as the first Achievement First school to introduce an elementary program. Even years after its establishment, the school maintains a steadfast focus on its elementary reading curriculum. Central to this curriculum is a dedicated three-hour reading block, considered a cornerstone of the educational approach. This block revolves around a phonics-based literacy program and the creation of text-rich classrooms. Through immersion in the world of sounds and words, students quickly acquire a strong foundation for more advanced reading. At Elm City College Preparatory Elementary, educators employ creative methods to foster and acknowledge hard work among students. These initiatives include taking students on field trips to local bookstores and organizing "Funtastic Friday" celebrations, adding an element of excitement to the learning experience.

Stamford Charter School for Excellence is a public charter school based on a proven, nationally-recognized school model, practiced by the Bronx Charter School for Excellence, that can boost student achievement and prepare more Stamford students for college and the jobs of tomorrow. The Key Elements of the Model Proposed for the Stamford School High academic standards focused on preparing kids for college and jobs, extended school days, broad liberal arts education that stresses teaching critical thinking skills, data-driven instruction, rigorous parent engagement and open collaboration with the community.

While there are charter and high schools, there are no charter elementary schools in Stamford. SCSE offers another high performing academic option for families.

Brass City Charter School (BCCS) provides a rigorous academic and holistic social-emotional learning program that will eliminate the achievement gap for underserved students. BCCS enables students to soar academically, develop as people of character, and lead meaningful and productive lives both for themselves and for their community. BCCS is a highly relational school. We celebrate a dedicated staff who believe deeply in the potential of each child, small class size, a structure that is highly supportive of teachers and their development, and community involvement. Parents are expected to play a significant role in their child's education.

The mission of Explorations Charter School is to provide an environment that cultivates a positive attitude toward lifelong learning in an experiential, non-traditional educational setting.

Explorations' program emphasizes activities which foster the acceptance of responsibility and the development of positive decision-making and problem-solving skills. We encourage students to develop a healthy attitude toward their school, community, work, family, and, most importantly, toward their own sense of self. Through family and community involvement, our students realize how each of us takes ownership in contributing to a better future for all.

It is the goal of EXPLORATIONS Charter School to develop students into adults who will be good citizens, good and productive role models, and individuals who will make a positive contribution to society.
