Opportunities for Self-Care

Healthy Schools Start with Healthy Adults: Strategies to Support Educator Wellness

June 2020

Understanding the Issue

Helping students maintain a sense of safety and connection during the COVID-19 pandemic is shaped by the adults in their lives utilizing their own personal skills and strategies for navigating stressful circumstances. Equipping educators with realistic self-care strategies is essential to student wellness and to the well-being of the overall school community, particularly during a time of isolation due to school closures and social distancing restrictions. Put simply, educators first need to take care of themselves before they can effectively help their students.

The Ripple Effects of Wellness

Individual wellbeing and self-care are central to modeling healthy relationships with students and families. Combined with strategies to maintain a strong school community, this approach forms the foundation for healthy and resilient education systems. These spheres of wellness are interdependent; success in one area depends on success in each of the others (see Figure 1).

Supporting Individual Wellbeing and Self-Care

Unpacking the science of stress, one learns that in prolonged periods of perceived threat, the brain and the nervous system continue to send a signal to both the mind and the body that conveys a lack of safety. This impairs one's best thinking and decision-making abilities. Everyone has unique stress response patterns; different strategies will help different individuals maintain their wellbeing.

- > This video provides a brief introduction to the body's stress response and provides information on what stress might feel like in your body.
- > Practice stress management techniques, such as a guided body scan and alternate nostril breathing.
- > Download a mindfulness or meditation app such as Headspace or Calm for easy access to just-in-time exercises to promote mental, physical, and emotional wellness.
- > Schedule into your day a planned "brain break" at a set point each day, and make time in your day to move your body to adjust your mindset.

Key Feedback

Administrator Evaluation

Differentiate evaluation by leadership role

Revisit and update the leadership standards

Vary the ways to demonstrate meeting the standards according to role and experience (Inquiry cycles, action research, peer observation)

Support professional learning for all administrators

Continue to honor the emphasis on SEL within the evaluation process

Teacher Evaluation

Reconfigure the proscribed ratings in the summative rating

Allow for more teacher choice and individualization (goals, data collection, rubric)

Be more specific in the guidelines to encourage a coaching model of evaluation

Inter district trainings and calibration could create more consistency in the implementation within the guidelines

Consider how districts can be held accountable for implementing their approved evaluation plans

EES 2022 Feedback Analysis Tool Responses

EES 2022 Council members reviewed results from the PDEC Survey and the RESC Alliance Feedback Forum Report to:

- Identify Key Take-aways:
 - Administrator Evaluation and Support
 - Teacher Evaluation and Support
 - Professional Development & Evaluation Committees (PDECs)
- Rate potential effect on improving the current system of educator evaluation and support:
 - High – the greatest potential
 - Medium – potential for improvement
 - Low – potential to maintain, but not improve

Key Takeaways - Administrators

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH:	Model <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Combination of long-term and short-term measures• Support the individualization of evaluation by role• Move toward a coaching model• Eliminate current evaluation system.• Districts develop their own evaluation system that incorporates the CCT CCL Rubric• The standards for school leaders must be the cornerstone of the evaluation system. Particular focus on team building within their department/ school.• Build on districts that have good models.• Administrator evaluation based in part on the support and quality feedback provided to the teachers assigned to them.• Include climate survey results as one of multiple indicators and differentiate the process for building level administrators and central office staff.

Key Takeaways - Administrators

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Resources, Training and Supports <ul data-bbox="512 458 2390 1072" style="list-style-type: none"><li data-bbox="512 458 2390 501">• Share newly developed district evaluation systems with others to grow effective practices.<li data-bbox="512 515 2390 615">• The standards for school leaders must be the cornerstone of the evaluation system. Particular focus on team building within their department/ school.<li data-bbox="512 629 2390 843">• Administrator Evaluation cannot be “second place” to the Teacher Evaluation and training. It must be front and center with Teacher Evaluation guidelines. Spend time on determining the type of quantitative/ qualitative outcomes CT wants to measure and how that might take place.<li data-bbox="512 858 2390 958">• Spend time on determining the type of quantitative/ qualitative outcomes CT wants to measure and how that might take place.<li data-bbox="512 972 2390 1072">• Require training and calibration a minimum of every three years. Ensure training is developed with stakeholder input and is consistent across the state.

Key Takeaways - Administrators

Effect	Recommendations
MEDIUM	Model <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Require combination of measures • More opportunities for choice/individualization within evaluation plan • Differentiated between school and central office; roles are not comparable • Explore other admin evaluation models—focus for school leaders must be instructional leadership and stakeholder engagement Resources, Training and Supports <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Support professional learning for administrators • Ensure that the process is doable in a reasonable timeframe with fidelity • On-going training for administrators (regionally) to support growth of admin on “what good leadership looks like
LOW	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Include SEL skills as part of student achievement goals
OTHER	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Differentiate between Central Office and building administrators • Allow choice in how to demonstrate the standards

Key Takeaways - Teachers

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Model <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Permit video observations• Move toward a coaching model. Have TEVAL be a true educator growth model.• Use other measures of professional growth beyond quantitative data.• Include more than just formal classroom observations in evaluation• Valid and reliable data needs to be available to all teacher/subject areas and used in eval process – weighting could be shifted away 45%• Streamline and simplify the evaluation process• The process should focus on educator growth and learning rather than student outcomes and ensure this growth is measured qualitatively rather than mathematically quantified.• Eliminate current evaluation system. Have districts develop their own evaluation system that incorporates the Connecticut’s Common Core of Teaching rubric.

Key Takeaways - Teachers

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Model (continued) <ul style="list-style-type: none">• The evaluation process should be differentiated so that experienced teachers have more flexibility to focus on innovation and beginning teachers get the support they need. Educators without classrooms also need a different process.• The rating system must be discontinued. Statewide guidelines should be established rather than an inflexible statewide model. The purpose of evaluation is support and development which is needed for the far majority of teachers. Moving out ineffective staff moves to another model.• THE CCT must be the cornerstone of a new evaluation system and growth- quantitative and qualitative measures should be included. I would very much like to see a growth portfolio model for student work. There must be an expectation of growth for every child.• Please don't reinvent the wheel. Build on effective evaluation models in CT school districts.

Key Takeaways - Teachers

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Resources, Training and Supports <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Require and Provide Interdistrict professional development • Coaching Administrators on effective feedback on teaching and learning. • Share newly developed district evaluation systems with others to grow effective practices.
MEDIUM	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Find ways to promote consistency across districts • More opportunities for choice/individualization within evaluation plan • Calibration should go beyond school/district level
LOW	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No responses provided as LOW.
OTHER	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Focus on teacher actions, not student outcomes. Very strong universal negative reaction to videotaping. • Promote discussions between evaluator and evaluatee, and actionable timely feedback, not paperwork and ratings. • Allow some multi-year ratings, promote differentiated goal setting

Key Takeaways - PDECS

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Composition <ul data-bbox="422 405 2232 729" style="list-style-type: none"><li data-bbox="422 405 2232 562">• The PDEC Committee should be more flexible in terms of appointment. It is essential that teachers and administrators are fairly represented, and that the PD plan is based upon the needs of the district. Quantitative and qualitative data should be used in planning.<li data-bbox="422 576 2232 729">• Require an equitable ratio of admin and teachers and require the superintendent submit these names and their contact info to the SDE every September to enable direct communication with PDECs. Create template to help with submission process. Focus and Responsibilities <ul data-bbox="422 805 2262 1243" style="list-style-type: none"><li data-bbox="422 805 2262 848">• Provide strategies/guidelines for using data to inform professional learning<li data-bbox="422 862 2262 905">• Emphasis on Professional learning<li data-bbox="422 919 2262 1072">• The PDEC Committee should be doing an annual overall evaluation of the training provided-obtaining representative feedback and should be reviewing effective practices nationally, statewide and district wide and incorporating those into future plans.<li data-bbox="422 1090 2262 1190">• Utilize district and school priorities for professional learning and develop some aspect of educator (teacher and administrator) choice that will support the priorities.<li data-bbox="422 1205 2262 1243">• Implement an accountability/audit process to ensure districts are following the required

Key Takeaways - PDECS

Effect	Recommendations
HIGH	Training <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Increased guidance and training for PDECs to implement with consistency as to the State model• The members of the PDEC Committee should receive training prior to becoming members. They should also be experienced in providing professional development in a variety of venues.• Encourage innovation in structures for delivering and receiving professional learning by providing professional learning ON professional learning to administrators and lead teachers.• process and are including teacher input on the PDEC. Support this by providing PDECs training materials and resources developed with stakeholder input. Legislation and Monitoring <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Remove legislative requirement for PDEC and establish support for district's to established councils focused on professional learning and growth for both teachers and administrators. Minimize requirements for operation thereby promoting opportunities for districts to innovate.• Require evaluation plans and professional development plans be updated and submitted to the state every three years and ensure these plans made publicly available on SDE website. Revisit professional development statutory mandates to ensure PDECs can realistically incorporate them into their PD plan.

Key Takeaways - PDECS

Effect	Recommendations
MEDIUM	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Provide support for decision making protocols for committees• Clarify goals and purpose of district PDECS• Provide technical assistance to PDECS on use of data• Monitor PDECS for functionality and fidelity of implementation• Provide training and guidance for evaluators• Design trainings for districts to access on effective PDEC meetings (on-going) i.e. data teams, using Eval data to drive district learning objectives• Defining how to look at eval and student data through an equity lens• Investigate/Explore how to use evaluation data meaningfully (not using summative ratings)
LOW	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Require semi-annual meetings
OTHER	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Equal numbers of certified administrators who have been trained as evaluators and certified teachers• Others may be invited to take part in PD planning if they are impacted by these decisions (such as paraprofessionals).• Consider how districts can be held accountable and be supported to have functioning PDECS, and include PD in the work of PDECS, not just teacher evaluation.

Consensus Protocol

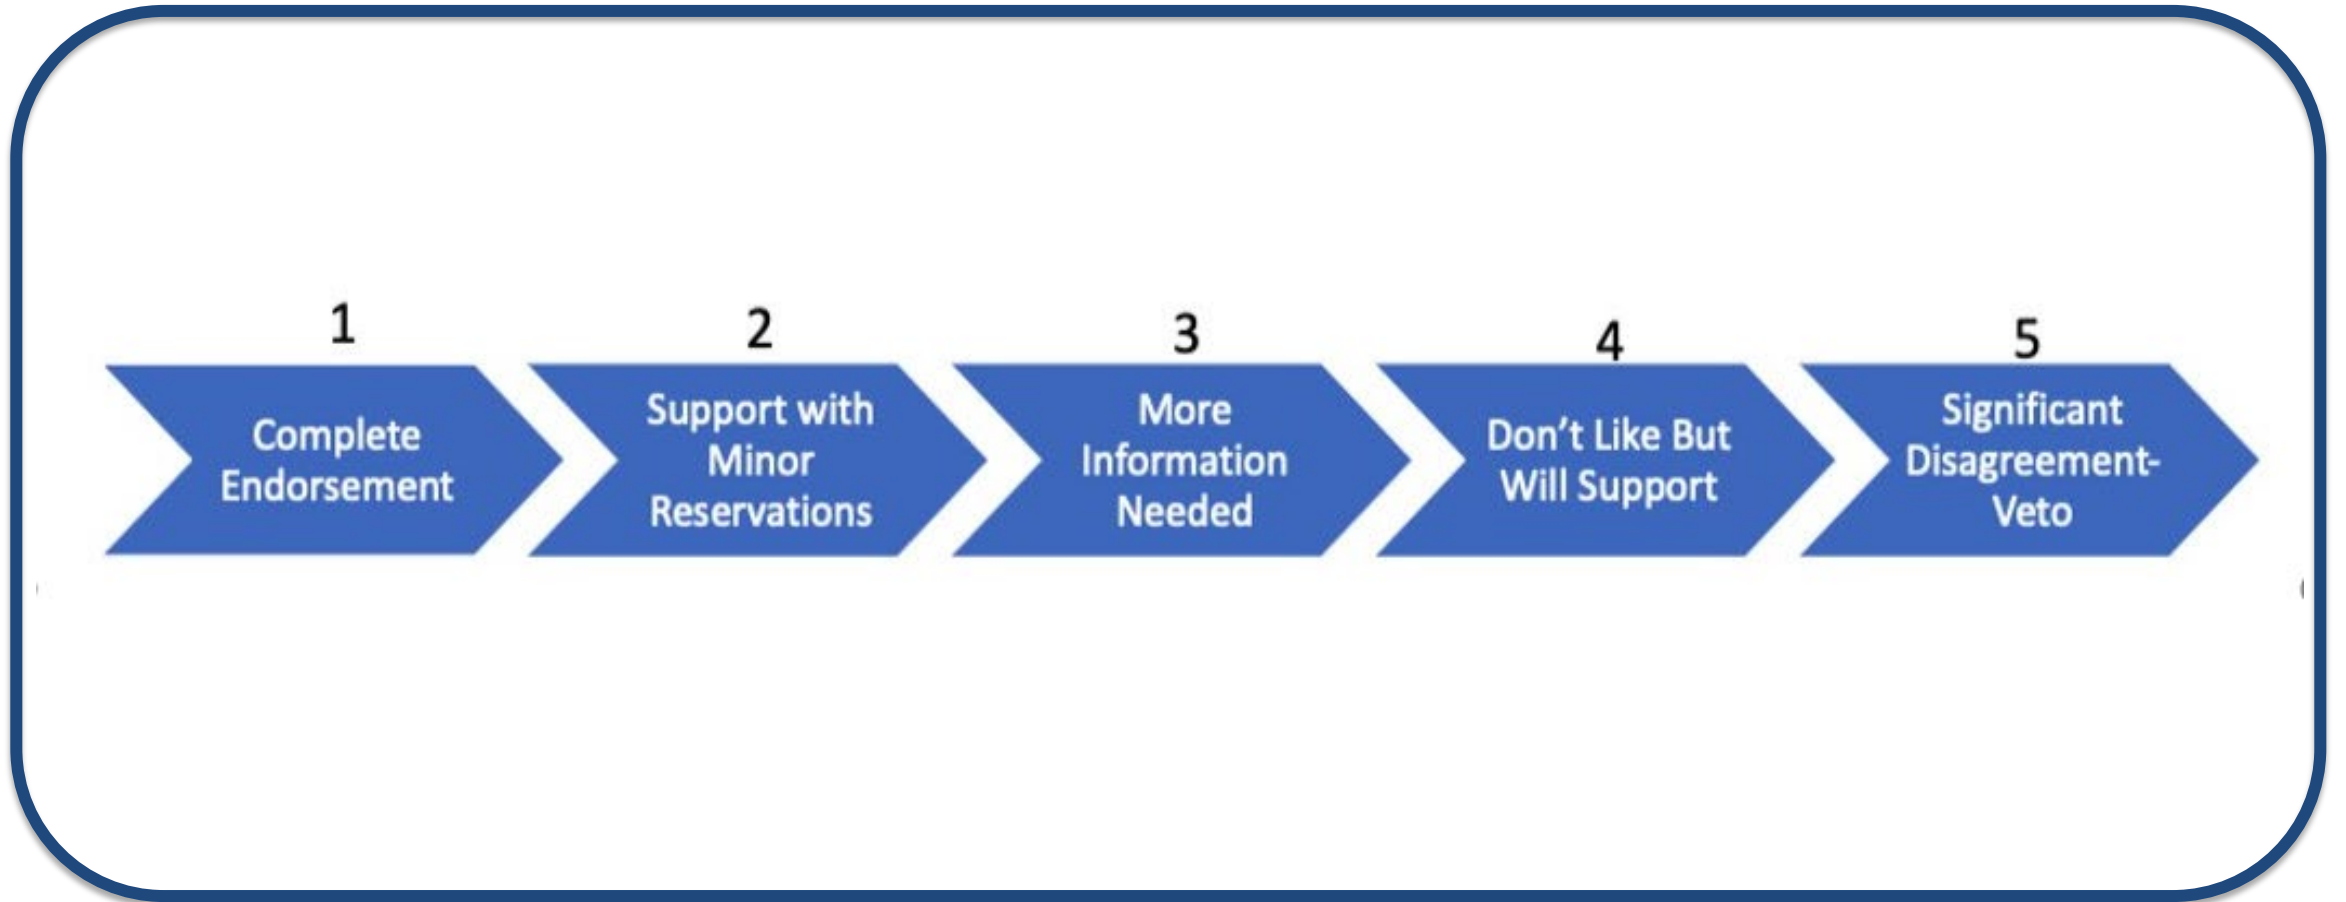

It's often good to start with what consensus is not: Consensus isn't voting. A majority isn't enough to declare victory and move on; what matters is the will of the entire group. Because of this, true consensus means there aren't winners and losers. Instead, consensus asks all participants to consider and eventually affirm the following three guiding principles:

Consensus Guiding Principles

- My voice has been heard
- I understand the proposal
- It's clear to me that the will of the group has emerged around this proposal

Gradients of Agreement

Teams Poll (Anonymous)

- After hearing the updated timeline w/consideration for extending Flexibilities through 2022-23, I believe I:
 - Can completely support and recommend
 - Support and recommend knowing I have minor reservations
 - Need more information to make an informed decision
 - Don't agree with updated timeline but will recommend knowing continued efforts will be made to support implementation
 - Cannot recommend extending Flexibilities through 2022-23

Vision

All Connecticut educators have the opportunity for continuous learning and feedback, to develop and grow, both individually and collectively, through the educator evaluation and support system so that all Connecticut students experience growth and success.

Next Steps & Upcoming Meeting

- DRAFT changes to the CT Guidelines for Educator Evaluation (2017) will be developed based on the collective feedback from Council members & stakeholder input.
- Initial DRAFT changes will be shared with Council members ahead of our next meeting with opportunities for feedback & recommendations.
