SUBJECT: AUTHENTICATION OF SCHOOL DIPLOMAS AND TRANSCRIPTS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND CONTENTS

This memo was prepared to help Connecticut university and high school students obtain authentication of their student records for use in other countries. It specifies the policies and procedures that must be followed to enable this office to authenticate certified copies of student records.

Although original diplomas and certified official transcripts issued by your school are sufficient for use within the United States, they are not sufficient for use in other countries. Student record documents to be used in another country must be prepared for use in all of the following ways:

1) The documents must be certified and signed with an original signature by the appropriate school official (or, in the case of diplomas only, by the student)
2) The signature of the school official (or student, in the case of diplomas only) must be properly notarized by a Connecticut notary public
3) The notary’s commission must be authenticated by the Connecticut Secretary of the State

Certification, notarization, and authentication of school documents is a requirement that other countries impose upon students. Failure to comply with each of these requirements may delay or deny a student’s admission to education and job programs in the country to which the documents are sent.

The remainder of this policy memo describes exactly how official student record documents must be certified and notarized so that this office can authenticate them. Diplomas may be school- or student-certified. Transcripts may be school-certified only. Procedures are listed under the headings “Transcripts” and “Diplomas.” Visual examples follow each procedure description. Please note, a notary may never simply “sign and seal” a diploma, transcript or copies of student records. A proper certification and notarial act must appear on all student record documents to be authenticated.

TRANSCRIPTS

Requirements
Copies of student transcripts must be certified by the school and properly notarized before they can be authenticated. Only the school registrar, or other authorized school official, may certify that a transcript is a true copy of the original record in the school’s possession. Students may not make certified copies of their transcripts. A Connecticut notary may not make a certified copy of a school transcript. In fact, Connecticut state law does not give notaries the authority to make any certified copies. The school must be located in Connecticut in order for a transcript to be certified, notarized, and authenticated in Connecticut. Transcripts from schools outside of Connecticut must be certified, notarized, and authenticated in the state or country where the school is located.

SCHOOL-CERTIFIED TRANSCRIPT

Procedure (school must be located in Connecticut)

1. The school registrar, or other school official authorized by the school to make copies of transcripts, must print or type the following statement on the original certified official transcript, or photocopy of the certified official transcript:

   "I, (name of school official), (title of school official), certify that this is a true copy of the transcript of (name of student)."

2. The school registrar, or other school official named in number 1 above, must then personally appear before a Connecticut notary public, sign and date the certification statement made in number 1, and swear (or make oath) to the truth of the statement.

3. The notary must then type or print a jurat statement on the document, near the school official's signature. The form of the jurat statement is:

   "Subscribed and sworn to before me this ________ day of ____________, 200__ ."

4. The notary must then sign the jurat, and list the date his/her notary commission expires.

After completion of these four steps, the certified and notarized transcript can be sent to the office of the Connecticut Secretary of the State, with the proper fee, for authentication. It will be returned to the student by mail after the authentication is completed.

DIPLOMAS

Requirements

General

Copies of student diplomas may be either student-certified or school-certified. Only the student who has the original diploma in his/her possession, or the school that issued the diploma can certify that a copy of a diploma is a true copy of the diploma issued to the student. A Connecticut notary may not make a certified copy of a school diploma. In fact, Connecticut state law does not give notaries the authority to make any certified copies.

Certification of Diplomas by a Connecticut School

If a copy of a diploma is to be certified by a school, the school must be located in Connecticut in order for the copy to be notarized and authenticated in Connecticut.

Certification of Diplomas by Students

If a student is physically present in Connecticut and has a diploma issued from a school either in Connecticut or outside of Connecticut, the student may make a copy of the diploma, certify that it is a true copy in front of a Connecticut notary public, and have the certified and notarized copy authenticated in Connecticut.

Diplomas that Cannot be Certified and Authenticated in Connecticut

If a student is not physically present in Connecticut, and his diploma was issued by a school outside of Connecticut, the diploma may not be certified, notarized, and authenticated in Connecticut. The student will have to contact the non-Connecticut school that issued the diploma, and the secretary of the state’s office in the state where the school is located, and ask how to get an authenticated, certified copy of the diploma.
