Mission

The Judicial Selection Commission's mission is to evaluate, investigate and recommend qualified candidates for consideration by the Governor for nomination as judges of the Superior Court, the Appellate Court, and the Supreme Court.

Statutory Responsibility

The Commission's statutory responsibility is to administer and enforce the provisions of Connecticut General Statute Section 51-44a. Under that section, the Commission has the responsibility of seeking qualified candidates for consideration by the Governor for nomination as judges for the Superior Court, Appellate Court, and Supreme Court. All candidates seeking consideration for appointment to judicial office, including incumbent judges seeking reappointment, or appointment to a different court, are required to complete the appropriate application forms which are promulgated by the Commission. The Commission conducts an investigation and evaluation of each candidate for judicial office, including judges seeking reappointment, or appointment to a different court. The Commission contacts the Bar Associations, judges, and attorneys concerning candidates for judicial appointment in order to conduct its investigation and evaluation. For judges, the Commission contacts The Judicial Review Council, the Governor's Office, the Office of Chief Court Administrator, and the Connecticut Criminal Defense Lawyer's Association. In addition, the Commission posts notices in the courts of Connecticut to encourage public comment before conducting its interviews.

Public Service

The Commission received 46 applications from candidates for judicial office; 21 applications from judges seeking reappointment to the same court; and 9 applications from judges seeking appointment to a different court. The Commission held 11 meetings. Of the 46 candidates who applied to the Commission for judicial office, 31 candidates were recommended by the Commission to the Governor. Of the 21 judges who applied to the Commission for reappointment to the same court, 21 judges were recommended by the Commission to the Governor. Of the 9 judges who applied to the Commission for reappointment to a different court, 8 judges were recommended by the Commission to the Governor.

Improvements/Achievements 2014-2015

New Appointees

Governor Malloy appointed two new Commissioners, Audrey Blondin and Clifford Leach.

Outreach Programs at Connecticut Bar Associations

The Judicial Selection Commission conducted three outreach events at the following Connecticut Bar Associations: The George Crawford Black Bar; The Fairfield County Bar; and the Litchfield County Bar. The Commission strives to ensure diversity of practice in geography, race, gender, religion, etc.

Records Management

In accordance with the Connecticut State Library, the Judicial Selection Commission has collaborated with Scan-Optics and has initiated a project to convert its paper records to a digital format within an encrypted flash drive. The records scanned are searchable PDF files and are in compliance with the records retention schedule as permanent records.

Information Reported as Required by State Statute

The Commission operates, and will continue to operate in conformance with Sec. 51-44(a) inclusive of the General Statutes of Connecticut.
